A SUMMER STORM IN THE OCHOTSE .- AUG. 8D .-This day a rain and thunder storm, with driving fog. The thunder rolled heavily in the East, but I did not observe any lightning. The Russian merchants with whom I am to travel to Tavesk, have got within twelve miles of this city from Ochotsk city, but find the rivers so swellen from the rains that they cannot pass them with their heavy laden horses. We expect them by to-morrow.

MORNING AFTER THE STORM .- I got up earlier than usual this morning and sallied out to take a look at the weather. The fog had settled down on the lowlands, which gave everything a dull, sombre look, but the morning sun rose bright and clear, and painted the East with his beautiful rays, dissipating the vapors. The swallows and chip-birds were skipping about on the grass and singing as cheerfully as though it was the opening of spring. In the rear of the town rose the lofty highlands, which range all along this coast, their ravines still filled with snow. which, glistening in the rays of the sun, presented a peautiful appearance. This, too, in August; but I am in latitude 60° North. I am told they never lose night of snow here, the year round. During any walk I took a look at the potato field, and found they were growing rapidly, as were the turnips. The potatoes, as I mentioned before, are planted and tended by the women. One potato is put into a little hole made with the hands, then another six inches from the first and so on, till the row is completed. A trench is then dug on each side of the row, in order that the water may drain off. In this climate the ground remains frozen till late in the season, and the thawing produced by the summer sun, would kill the potatoes without the expedient of draining the ground. This is no doubt the reason that so few vegetables are raised here. By careful observation, I conclude there is about ten acres of land under cultivation, and one would think there would be more, when we remember how much they must stand in need of vegetables during the long winters, to vary the fish and milk diet which is so universal. A Good HAUL.-The men returned to-day with large quantities of fish, having been very successful. The women I have frequently noticed going down to the boats on their return and carrying the fish up to the cleaning table by hand. It looked rather hard to see the women trudging through mud and water with a large salmon in each hand, while the men stood idling about. But it is their custom. To-day, one of the young men, moved perhaps, by a touch of gallantry, harnessed five dogs to a half of an old canoe upon which he piled the fish, which the dogs drew up the beach with all ease, and apparently were greatly pleased with their employment, jumping and frisking about in high glee. A LEISURE DAY .- To-day for some reason, was a leisure day among the people. It was also a beautiful day-the sun shone clear and warm and the air nild. Many of the people passed and repassed the house in order to get a look at the "Americansky" as they call me. Numbers of the more respectable, or perhaps the more wealthy, (synonamous terms in this world) came in and sat down to have a chat with me as well as they were able. As near as I could make out they have a very exalted opinion of the general good qualities of the Americans, though they seemed slightly put back when I made them understand, in answer to inquiries, that our national religion was not Catholic. The word Catholic they apply to their church, which is the Greek.

Two Fellow-Countrymen.-I was informed this morning that two American sailors were at Carazofka, about seven miles from here. I had made up my mind to go and see them, when I was prevented by their arrival. Their names were J. W. A. Cowan, of Banger, and Charles Grant, of Portland, Me., deserters from the ship Walter Scott. They stated that they deserted on account of ill-treatment. Be that as it may, they seemed to be active, intelligent, and agreeable young men. I advised them to remain here, and accompany me to the westward when the caravan arrives. They left the boat in what is called Horse-shoe Bay, some forty miles from here, but owing to the rugged nature of the country and the numerous rivers, they had traveled upwards of two hundred miles in coming here. The last four days they had been without food, and were pretty well used up. The people generously received them, and, to the best of their abilities, ministered to their wants.

ARRIVAL OF THE CARAVAN.-To-day, August 6. being the second fine day, the Russian caravan of traders arrived from Ochotsk city, en route for Tarvisk. I was introduced to the leading merchant, a young man by the name of Bragin. He is the son of a rich merchant of the city of Esihegar, the most southern settlement in this sea. He makes this journey twice and sometimes three times a year, carrying supplies of foreign luxuries, such as tea, coffee and flour, which they cannot obtain from any other part of the coast. The inhabitants of Esihegar are made up more of the mixed races than the other settlements; the real Russian predominates, next comes the Cossacks, and last and least, the Tonguse, or Tartars, the original inhabitants. We are to start to-morrow for Tarvesk, a distance of 195 miles, E. & S. by compass, but the route which the caravans are obliged to pursue makes it 400 miles. Were it winter time, the direct route would be taken with dog teams over the snow, but it would be impossible for a horse to ascend and descend these rugged mountains. Dogs can make a track in the snow and pass safely over places where a horse would sink out of sight. THE FAIR BOOTMAKER .- I saw to-day a beautiful young girl of about sixteen busily engaged in sewing a pair of raw-hide boots. The tops and legs were of untanned cowhide, and the sole of seal skin, also untanned. I was surprised to find that she had no awl, and that the needle was about the ordinary size of a tailor's needle, and with this she worked away with all the case of a Lynn shoemaker, with his awl and waxed end. These boots are universally worn, in all weathers, and are mid to be water-proof. The thread

ON THE ROUTE.-We left Enear to-day at poon. after bidding a kind farewell to all. Though anx. ious to get on shipboard again, still I find it hard leaving these people. I never in any of my travels, by sea or land, was better treated than I have been here. My best wishes are for the welfare of the simple-bearted dwellers on the shores of the Ochotsk Sea. We did not get far the first day sfeer leaving Enear, purchased at Ochotsk city. Two of these apparently had some old grudge between them, and every time

Our re lay along the sea-shore, and once, in one of their battles, they rushed into the water. There was quite s surf on, and the consequence was that pretty much all their loading of dry goods, &c., was spoiled before before—they had bitten great pieces of skin and flesh the size of my hand from each others, sides Coming to a stream we unloaded the horses and swam them to the opposite side, while the goods were ferried over in a boat. Here we found the little town of Carazofks, where we remained two days, waiting for the rest of our company. On the 12th August we were fairly underway, with fifty-seven horses and sixteen souls—though one of my companions, if possessed of a seal, did not seem to be aware of the fact, as I never seard him more than grunt during the twenty days I was with him. Our journey was all up mounts and down ravines, over rocks and across rivers. The miles, though one day we made forty miles, the traveling being good and the provisions getting short. At night, coming to a small stream, we speared three dozen fine large malmon in a very short time, and thus replenished our stock. The horses also inxuriated on the wild outs which grew in abundance in this valley. OR BOARD THE CED SELP AGAIN .- Without meeting any incident worth particularizing, we arrived at Doben Town on the 8th of September, and on the 16th

(to-day) I rejoined my old ship which I left four months ago. Twenty-five years ago to-day I joined the ship Edward Quesnell, of Pall River, for a whaling voyage to the Pacific. In my short life of thirty-nine years I have passed through many strange

The Presidency of Oahu College.

The Trustees of this institution were notified, at a recent meeting, by President Beckwith, that in consequence of the pro-tracted indisposition of his wife, and the decided opinion of her physician that her health would not be permanently improved while residing in a tropical climate, he must resign his situation as President. This announcement has filled the minds of the trustees, students and friends of the institution with much sadness and perplexity. They had been fondly and confidently looking to him as just the man whose abilities and qualifications most eminently fitted him to preside over the infant Seminary, and secure for it that public sympathy and pecuniary endowment so much needed at the present cri-As he has, however, intimated that he will not retire for a full twelve month, allowing sufficient time for a successor to be chosen, we cannot but earnestly hope and fervently pray, that the cause of his resignation being happily removed by a kind Providence, he may long remain to perfect that system of education which he has so happily inaugur-

It affords us sincere gratification to announce that this important step has not been taken, in consequence of any fears in the President's mind that the institution was prematurely undertaken or would not succeed. He has not intimated a thought in that direction. The Trustees entertain no such views. They are constantly becoming more deeply impressed with the necessity and importance of building up an institution where the foundations have been so auspiciously laid. Its endowment must be secured. The rising generation must be educated here, although occasionally individuals may go abroad. Most sadly should we deprecate a retrograde tendency in this enterprise. There must not be one backward step. If, in the Providence of God, our respected President feels that necessity compels him to retire, there must another be sought out, chosen and sent hither, unless he can be found upon the islands.-Punahou (new spring) must continue to send forth its pure mountain stream! The noble and generous spring that gushes from its soil, sending forth its perennial current to freshen. gladden and fertilize the broad plain, happily typifies that intellectual, moral and spiritual stream which, we trust, may never cease flowing from that collegiate institution so long as our islands remain the cherished and happy abode of human beings. Nature and Providence indicate that at that favored spot there shall continue to exist a never-failing fountain of learning and science. We are glad to know that the noble men who conduct the world-wide operations of the American Board of Foreign Missions at Boston, take enlarged and correct views upon this subject. They see and realize that should the Sandwich Islands be left without a college, university, or such an institution as this seems designed to be, the crowning work of the great Protestant Missionary enterprise in the North Pacific would be incomplete. Every civilized, educated and Christian nation must have an elevated institution of learning, well officered and well endowed. We are hopeful for the future, and sincerely trust that the Rev. W. P. Alexander, who has recently embarked for the eastern States. may succeed in securing funds for an ample endowment, and, if it finally appears necessary, also of selecting a new President .-

The attention of several Captains of whaleships has recently been turned to the subject of shipping their oil from Panama to New York during the present season, their oil from Panama to New York during the present season, and the Panama Rail-Road Company has made arrangements to afford every facility which may be required for the accomplishment of this important object. A Pier, 450 feet long, has been built in the bay of Panama, to the end of which Freight Cars are run to receive cargoes from lighters or vessels lying alongside, and deliver the same alongside of vessels at Aspinwall.
